

ERASMUS MUNDUS JOINT DOCTORATES (EMJDs)

The following information is about the Action 1 - Erasmus Mundus Joint Doctorates (EMJD). Erasmus Mundus programme itself is initiated by the European Commission within the field of higher education that funds mobility activities between European universities¹ and universities from targeted third-countries. The Erasmus Mundus Programme supports academic excellence and the attractiveness of Europe's higher education worldwide, and fosters cooperation with targeted third countries with the objective of contributing to their development (for more information about Erasmus Mundus programme please see the Newsletter N6, 2009).

Erasmus Mundus Joint Doctorates form a new element within Erasmus Mundus. These doctoral-level training and research programmes will offer fellowships covering up to three years of doctoral activities. Applicant doctoral candidates should contact the consortium offering the EMJD for more information on courses and application procedures. Note that some websites are under construction.

Here are the selected Joint Doctorates under the Erasmus Mundus programme. Please note that mostly of the Joint Doctorates have the call for applications at the end of November – beginning of December 2009. For more information visit the websites of the selected doctorate programmes.
